A Contented Life. BY JAMES NACK.

(AT TRISTY.) Five hundred dollars I have saved-A rather moderate store-No matter : I shall be content When I've a little more.

(AT FORTY.) Well, I can count ten thousand now-That's better than before; And I may well be satisfied When I've a little more.

(AT FIFTY.) Some fifty thousand-pretty well-But I have carned it sore ; However, I shall not complain When I've a little more

(AT SURTY.) One hundred thousand-sick and old-Ah! life is half a bore! Yet I can be content to live When I've a little more!

(AT SECRETT.) He dies-and to his greedy heirs. He leaves a countless store ; His wealth has purchased him a tomb-And very little more!

VARIETY.

Peevish spirits are apt to abuse their comforts. Troubles are the trials of friendship.

Fresh mercies should put us in mind of former If God were not more mindful of his promises than we are of his precepts, we were undone. Good work is like, then, to be well done when it is first well considered.

Many hands will make light work. Those are most honorable that are most useful. The reproaches of our enemies should rather quicken us to our duty than drive us from it. Let those in public places remember that they were preferred to do good, not to enrich themselves. Fools build houses for wise men to dwell in. We cannot reckon that really and comfortably our own which is not so when all our debts are paid. The sweetest and most satisfactory connections in life are those formed between persons of congenial minds, equally linked together by the conformity of their virtues, and by the ties of esteem. out the faculties of the wise and ingenious, puts the modest to the necessity of trying their skill, awes the opulent, and makes the idle industrious. many others, has vigor; who can produce more and better, has talents; who can produce what none else can, has genius .- Lavater's Aphorisms. I hold it to be impossible for a man who is sincere in true religion to be in a fallen world, without in his measure, and in his place, and according to his ability, being a man of controversy .- Rev. Dr. Mc Neile. Suffering others to think for us, when Heaven has supplied us with reason and a conscience, for the express purpose of enabling us to think for ourselves, is the great fountain of all human error. A HINT TO GOVERNORS .- A ruler who appoints any man to an office, when there is in his dominions another man better qualified for it, sins against God and against the State.- The Koran. THE NEW UNFERMENTED BREAD .- There can be no doubt that the newly discovered aerated bread will prove a blessing to many, whose stomachs could not digest the ordinary bread raised by fermentation. It is now being regularly made and sold in London, and is eagerly sought after by a large class of people, to whom fermented bread had been prohibited by the doctors. The process of making the bread consists in forcing ready prepared carbonic acid, by means of mitable machinery, into the water with which the dough is prepared, then mixing the flour, water and salt together, in a highly condensed atmosphere. From the mixing apparatus the dough is received into the baking pans, and passed into the ovens, without being touched by the hands. By this means the consistency of the flour is left both unchanged and uncontaminated-the loaf being accordingly absolutely pure bread. There is absolute economy in this method of raising the bread, as it is certain that the process of fermentation destroys part of the substance of the flour, first the sugar, then the starch, to furnish dextrine, to furnish more sugar to be decomposed into carbonic acid gas and alcohol. RIVER IN A WASH-TUB, DRAWN BY FOUR GEESE,-The success of the Great Eastern illustrated one branch of the triumphs of modern navigation, and an incident witnessed on the levee in this city recently illustrated another. It was the grand feat of sailing down the Mississippi River in a common wash-tub, drawn by four geese. The rumor current that such a thing would be attempted proved sufficient to induce merchants and others to leave their stores to see it. About 4 P. M., the performer, who is a clown attached to Spaulding & Roger's circus, made his appearsace, affeat in the tub, and sure enough, there were the geese! They promptly started down stream, with the tub and its freight in tow, and were not at all frightened by the skiffs and barges that accompanied them. Cleopatra's barge and swans could not have excited more attention. The craft landed about a mile from the starting point, and was safely brought ashere, clown, tub, geese and all. The man who dared to make a boat of Diogenes' house, and harness thereto four winged steeds, for a flight, or a dive, or a sail, or a ducking, had more courage than common

INCREASE OF TIPPLING IN AMERICAN CITIES .- The Philadelphia Sun says, truly, that indiscriminate drinking among our young men must eventually make its mark upon the population of our cities. We can see it already betraying itself in the rising generation. It is impossible for any man to drink even pure liquors six or seven times a day without suffering severely in constitution. And when he transmits this impaired constitution to his son, who in urn impairs it still further by the same course, it requires little foresight to see that we are preparing s population for our cities that will not in physical frame be much better than the wretched Aztecs. This love of drink and bar rooms is every day increasing. Every day sees fresh salcons starting up in our midst. Every day sees our youth becoming more and more the victims of this habit, for really we think it more a habit than a provision. It is no love for joviality that tempts them, except in few cases. It is the hot exuberance of youth. It is not the evanescent impulse of the gay young fellow who is sowing his wild oats. It is, as has been said, a cold, deliberate, confirmed habit. No atmosphere of reckleseness or jollity surrounds the drinking groups, except on occasions; and no peals of merriment atone for the act by proving that it is at least unusual. A grim and melancholy air pervades each countenance. The drinks are poured out, the glasses raised and touched with a loathsome air of custom, and each man swallows his portion with the same impassive countenance he would wear if he were drinking a glass of plain water. All the concomitants that par-tially redeem or excuse drinking, as far as it can be kept on hand and for sale at low rates.

149-11 redeemed or excused, are wanting in this sad and formal ceremony. The actors drink, not because they love it, and want to be merry, but because they have been accustomed to it ever since they were boys,
